

Hope for Creation Conference

The Scottish Episcopal Church's Net Zero Team invites you to Hope for Creation, a conference taking place in Stirling on 20-21 October.

Bringing together funders, experts, eco-theologians, clergy, congregations and partner organisations, the event will explore how churches can respond to climate change through practical action, collaboration and shared learning. The programme includes keynote speakers Adrian Fox (Church of England) and Alastair McIntosh, alongside workshops and discussions on sustainable church buildings, carbon footprint reduction, creation care, biodiversity, funding opportunities, community energy and more. Open to all, the conference offers a chance to gain fresh ideas, make new connections and be inspired to help build a more sustainable future. Further information and tickets: click here

Amazing Music At St Mary's, Broughty Ferry On Friday 2nd October

St Mary's welcomes back the incredibly talented classical guitarist and composer, Richard Durrant.

Richard is celebrating his fourth decade of solo concerts not only with his THE ART OF LEVITATION TOUR but also by playing his own guitar hero's instrument on stage. Grammy Award winning Julian Bream recorded on the guitar Richard unboxes for a fascinating cameo during the second half of the show. The guitar was built by luthier Hector Quine 72 years ago. Richard said:

"Julian Bream was an inspiration to me and the guy that built this guitar, Hector Quine, actually gave me a break by giving me a place at the Royal College of Music - so this is a magical link. The guitar is on loan from the guitar historian Dr James Westbrook. I love taking it out of its battered old case at each show."

Bream played this guitar on his debut solo album "Julian Bream - Spanish Guitar Music". During this concert Richard will perform "Fandanguillo" by Joaquin Turina - a work included on the 23-year-old Bream's debut recording (1956) - also performed by a 23-year-old Richard at his London debut recital (1986).

This is a very special concert and Richard's only one in Scotland this year. We don't often get someone who has played at the Royal Albert Hall doing a show in Broughty Ferry - don't miss it!

Tickets cost £18 (£5 for under 19's) and are available on the door or from me (mrssusanrowe@gmail.com or 07894 163502).
